The Reconstructionist

“A Journal of Contemporary Jewish Thought and Practice”

The Reconstructionist journal, founded in 1935, continues to offer a lively discussion on Jewish topics and issues affecting Judaism and the Jewish community. It serves as a medium for the continuing development of Reconstructionist ideas, practices, and institutions, by addressing religious, political, social, and moral issues of contemporary Jewish life.

The Reconstructionist appears two times/year (Spring/Fall) and includes articles, essays and book reviews. By focusing on a single theme in each issue and bringing to bear multiple perspectives on it, The Reconstructionist is a forum for significant dialogue and fresh approaches within the contemporary Jewish community.
